MEMBERS OF THE ACADEMY

Receive copies of all the publications issued by the Academy, including the six copies of The Annals.

These are books on special subjects, of three hundred or more pages in length, carefully indexed. These volumes, which appear bi-monthly, discuss prominent subjects of national or international importance and include a résumé of the new books and documents on economic, social and political subjects.

May send queries for bibliographies and other information on current economic, social and political problems.

These queries are answered by specialists. The subjects on which queries may be sent include: foreign relations, including the consular and diplomatic service; corporation finance, investments and banking problems; insurance, brokerage and the exchanges; social work, government and administration; sociology; economics; statistics and labor problems; public finance and taxation; international law; transportation; commerce and industry.

Are entitled to attend the meetings of the Academy.

At these meetings well informed speakers discuss matters of paramount public interest.
